THE HARBOR AT RETHYMNO

Onward Travel is thrilled to add Crete to our repertoire for 2025. We'll spend a week on this idyllic Aegean island, the largest of the Greek archipelago, and one-time center of the ancient Minoan civilization.

The island of Crete has everything you are hoping to find in Greece - fantastic fresh food, art, stunning scenery, ancient history and mythology, beautiful beaches, and the famously friendly and fun local culture that makes you feel you've gone back in time. Join us for a week there, planned closely with our local tour director, Mirsini. The first half of the tour will be spent in the lovely little seaside city of Chania and the other half in a picturesque mountain village called Archanes, both of these are ancient settlements bursting with history, atmosphere and regional flavor.

As you explore Crete with your small group, enjoy fabulous meals from trendy urban bistros to a country hotel where we'll forage for herbs and cook our own bread over the fire. We'll get hands-on with two cooking experiences and two art classes focused on mosaics and ceramics. These creative methods extend all the way back to the ancient civilizations which flourished here and of course we'll be exploring them, too, visiting ancient ruins and an archaeological museum. Enjoying all of this alongside local guide Mirsini open our eyes to the wonder of this dynamic and beautiful island where ancient history surrounds us and a peaceful feeling floats through the air.

Welcome to the Greek Islands

DAY 1: SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 6

- Get to know our fantastic local guide for the week while touring Chania
- Toast your travel group from a boat looking back at the lovely coast

Arrive in Chania by midday today and check in to The Chania Hotel, a recently opened 5-star boutique hotel situated just where the Old Town meets the New City. The property has a vibe to match its location: historical reverence mixed with a fresh, modern aesthetic. And here you are in Chania, a deeply fascinating little city with thousands of years of history as a crossroads between “East” and “West.” In ancient times it was called Cydonia, and for hundreds of years it was an outpost of the great Venetian Empire. Later Chania (pronounced Hania, from the Turkish: Hanya) was conquered by the Turks to become an Ottoman stronghold, and for many generations it was as culturally diverse a place as existed anywhere.

Our group sets out in the early afternoon with Mirsini, our local guide and trip co-host who will travel with us all week. She will lead an engaging walking tour of this interesting and delightful place, which culminates in the harbour where we’ll board a boat for a sunset cruise. As we look back at the city and raising a glass to it we may just feel like we have the same view as the Venetians who dominated this harbour for many centuries. Once we’ve returned to land it’s time for a welcome dinner together at one of Mirsini’s favorite restaurants for upscale, modern food true to its Greek roots all accompanied by wonderful local wines.

Exploring Chania

DAY 2: SUNDAY SEPTEMBER 7

- Start your day with one of Crete's favorite breakfast foods
- Begin to meet local artisans: a knifemaker and a mosaic artist

Breakfast is included at your hotels each morning of this trip, but even though The Chania Hotel has a lovely spread for you it’s a good idea to leave a little room because our first stop this morning is at a local bakery to taste a favorite Cretan breakfast: bougatsa. This pastry filled with creamy cheese is a local staple and we will take the opportunity to watch the baking process and of course enjoy a slice.

From here we visit our first artisan of the trip - a knifemaker. You’ll visit the workshop and learn about their process... and then, a special gift: your own small knife to take home with you. Then we’re off to a super special destination: a scenic monestary on Chania’s northern peninsula where monks are making wine and olive oil according to centuries-old traditions. We will taste their production accompanied by some local snacks, and Mirsini will introduce us to the history of this tranquil and gorgeous place. By now it’s lunch time and we’re going to enjoy a fabulous meal paired with a fabulous view of the seaside. After lunch, we visit another local artisan who will teach us to become artisans ourselves... we’re going to take part in a mosaic workshop! Mosaics, as the artist says, are the sister of paintings and an art form that endures through the centuries. Here in the land of ancient art, with a panoramic view of the Cretan Sea, we will make our own individual works using age old techniques, and at the end of the workshop they go home with us (don’t worry, they weigh only about as much as a bottle of wine!).

What an incredible day it’s been in Chania. Continue to discover this special place into the evening as you’re on your own tonight.

Meals Breakfast, Lunch

Day Trip to Rethymno

DAY 3: MONDAY SEPTEMBER 8

- Spend the day in the hometown of our local guide
- Taste phyllo pastry prepared by a legendary phyllomaster

This morning we’re off to Mirsini’s hometown: Rethymno. About an hour down the coast, Rethymno is a significant cultural and economic center on the island and a supremely charming little city to boot. On our way we’re making a stop at the archaeological site of Aptaera: mentioned in ancient writings as long ago as the 14th-13th centuries BC and in Greek mythology, Aptaera was an extremely powerful city-state from the Minoan through the Hellenistic periods. Eventually it was destroyed in an earthquake and today it is of particular interest due to its Roman ruins, restored Byzantine monastery and a nice example of an amphitheatre, all with scenic vistas over the Souda Bay and the White Mountains.

Once we get to Rethymno, it will be a delight to explore together with Mirsini. First we’re going to visit a famous phyllo master who prepares the pastry meticulously, just as his ancestors did, and to stunningly delicious result- of course we’ll have a taste. After we’ve gotten the lay of the land you’ll be on your own for lunch and a little wander before we reconvene to visit the Fortezza, an imposing citadel built by the Venetians, later taken by the Turks, and a unique and impressive fusion of Medieval European and Moorish architectural styles. Our last stop today is the workshop of a musical instrument master who still creates the three-stringed, pear-shaped Cretan lyra in the laborious traditional way, which we’ll learn something about and maybe even hear some music. Back in Chania tonight we’ll have a simple, delicious dinner together.

Meals Breakfast, Dinner

Sacred Local Olive Oil

DAY 4: TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 9

- Taste organic, small batch Greek olive oil straight from the source
- Cook up a feast at a fun cooking class with a local family

It's our last full day in Chania! Enjoy some time on your own in the city this morning. Grab a quick lunch and then we are headed to an organic olive oil estate in the mountains to learn firsthand about their production methods and of course we have to have a taste. If you've never done a "professional" olive oil tasting you are in for an experience! Then on our way back to Chania we will stop to pay homage to one of the oldest olive trees in the world, the Ancient Olive Tree of Vouves, which is somewhere between 2000-4000 years old.

Once we arrive back in Chania we have a special evening in store, cooking together in a local home on the edge of the city. Our hosts are a sister-brother duo and they will welcome us like family. This evening we're preparing lamb, roasted for two hours in a wood-fired stone oven, stuffed vegetables and grape leaves or dolmades, savory cheese pies and more! And you know the theme of the day will continue on tonight as our hosts explain and demonstrate just how important high quality olive oil is in the Greek kitchen.

To the Forest, to the Village

DAY 5: WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 10

- Learn about the rustic side of life, foraging and baking bread
- Check in to your new lodgings in a picturesque mountain village

After an early breakfast we're checking out of The Chania Hotel and heading inland to the mountains, villages and forests of the island where life moves at a slower, more traditional pace. First let's visit a multi-generational family at their mountain hotel restaurant where we will get started with baking bread in the traditional way with special Cretan yeast and a wood-fired oven. While the bread bakes, take a walk in the forest to learn about local flora and fauna and gather herbs. Cretans have a deep connection to their local wild plants which they harvest in abundance for culinary and medicinal uses.

Once we've returned to the restaurant it's time to enjoy a wonderful lunch together including our warm, freshly baked bread. Yum! Sadly then it's time to say goodbye to this wonderful family as we continue our day's journey. Next we're visiting the village of Margarites, renowned as the island's epicenter for pottery and the ceramic arts with its numerous studios and workshops. We will stop in to see a ceramic artist and learn about their works and process and then we'll have some free time to explore the different shops.

By the time we reach our final destination, Archanes, it will be nearly dinner time. Archanes is a mountain village not far from Heraklion and it's a place where time seems to stand still. Flowering bushes and vines frame brightly colored houses, panoramic views extend in all directions, and cafes just beckon you to relax at them. We've reserved rooms at two lovely little properties here in the heart of the village: Carpe Diem Hotel and Inotropes Boutique Suites. Once we've checked in we'll reconvene for a fun and casual dinner together at a taverna just around the corner from the hotels.

A STREET SCENE IN ARCHANES

Artisans Ancient and New

DAY 6: THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 11

- Explore the ancient Minoan world hands-on at a ceramic workshop
- Take your new knowledge of ancient iconography to the museum

Here in our little village is an artist whose unique, world-renowned ceramic work is inspired by the ancient Minoan artworks which are woven deep into the cultural fabric of her hometown of Heraklion. This morning she will welcome us into her shop and studio for a hands-on clay exploration of the symbolism, mythology and iconography of the ancient Minoan kingdom which we'll be learning about during these next two days in the Heraklion region, the heart of that legendarily creative ancient civilization. Each of us will create our own ceramic treasure which will be fired and ready for us to take home before we leave Crete. This is sure to be a very special morning and one we'll remember for a long time.

Then we're headed in the center of Heraklion for lunch at one of Mirsini's favorite restaurants. After lunch, Mirsini will show us around the city, and after some free time to stroll and shop we'll meet back up to visit the famous Heraklion Archaeological Museum. Thanks to our morning in the ceramics studio we'll already be familiar with some of the imagery, stories and ideas we're going to encounter here so our guided tour of the museum with Mirsini will be extra enjoyable. This evening back in Archanes you'll be on your own to enjoy dinner as you please.

Meals Breakfast, Lunch

The Treasures of Heraklion

DAY 7: FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 12

- Visit a place immortalized in one of the most famous Myths
- Raise a glass to your travel companions over a delicious dinner

By now we're becoming experts in all things Minoan and our last historical visit this morning is to the legendary Palace of Knossos. One of the most visited tourist attractions in all of Greece, this vast complex of ancient ruins is replete with myths and stories, the most famous of which is that of the Minotaur. Touring the palace ruins with Mirsini will be a fascinating treat.

From the Palace of Knossos we're headed to a local taverna for a casual lunch of meze and salads. And then on to a family-owned winery where we'll learn about their biodynamic farming processes and taste a full range of their delightful wines. In the afternoon we'll return to Archanes for a little bit of free time before we reconvene for our last delicious dinner together at a famous restaurant in the village.
